II Introduction to Ajou University and Suwon City

1. Introduction to Ajou University

Ajou University, established in 1973 under the motto of "Asia's best university for the 21st century", is a leading research university with 10 colleges in Korea. Located in Suwon, about 30km south of Seoul, Ajou has 14,000 students (9,000 undergraduate, 3,500 graduate, and 1,500 in other courses).

The strength in Ajou's academic programs and research lies in Engineering, IT, BT, NT, Medical Science, Business and International Studies. Ajou is widely recognized for its innovative international programs and strong support for international students and has collaborative partnership with over 200 universities in 58 countries. There is a wide range of international programs at Ajou including student and faculty exchanges, international summer school, Korean language program, etc. International students are taking courses offered in English by various majors. Today Ajou is welcoming about 750 international students a year.

Ajou University's name bears an ambition to become ' the best university in Asia in the 21st century when Asia becomes the center of the world '. Since its foundation, Ajou has pursued the following three virtues as guiding principles:

“Respect for Humans”,
“Seeking Truth from Fact”, and
“One World, One Family.”

◎ Respect for Humans (In-gan-jon-jung)

This means high self-esteem with the respect for others. It is the first principle that Ajou pursues through its research, education, and public service. It teaches us to connect ourselves to our neighborhoods, nation and to the world through respect and understanding, regarding a human being not as a tool, but as an ultimate goal or a value.

◎ Seeking Truth from Fact (Sil-sa-gu-si)

Seeking truth from fact conveys the meaning that academic results should be useful in practice. It is Ajou's most fundamental philosophy that seeking truth and academic research must be based on facts and their results should contribute to people's welfare.

◎ One World, One Family (Se-gye-il-ga)

This is a spirit that emphasizes that the entire world should move in harmony. We must break through the small barrier of the Korean Peninsula and advance to the world, and at the same time accept what's coming from the outside. This is Ajou's foremost principle in educating the youth.

2. Introduction to Suwon City

1) About Suwon City

Located in the southern central area of Gyeonggi Province (127°longitude, 37°latitude), Suwon is one the largest self-governed cities in the country with a population of over 1.2 million and an area of 121.008 km².

At the center of the city is Mount Paldalsan that stands 143 meters above sea level with the magnificent Mount Gwanggyosan to the North and Mount Chilbosan to the west surrounding the city and its plain to the south.

The weather is mostly temperate with an average annual temperature of 13 °C and average precipitation of 1,370mm that typify the climate of the central region.

With the completion of a recent road expansion project and connection with Seoul's transportation system, the city allows easy access to Seoul and its other satellite cities.

2) History of Suwon

Suwon is an ancient city that used to be called Suseong or Hwaseng, and has long been known as the home of filial piety. Relics from the Paleolithic Age found in the city's Ji-dong and lui-dong District suggest that human settlement in the area began as early as some 700,000 years ago. The first Korean Kingdom to rule the area was the "Baekje Dynasty" During the Era of three Kingdoms and the city's current name, Suwon, first appeared in 1271 when the area was named Suwon Dohobu under the "Gorye Dynasty".

3) Suwon Hwaseong

The construction of Suwon Hwaseong Fortress began in the 18th year of King Jeonjo(1794) and was completed two years later in 1796. It is viewed to be the greatest and most unique structure in the country's history of fortresses that was designed by Jeong Yak-yong and shows the science, art architecture of the 18th century that combined castle-building techniques of both the East and West, leading to the development and wide use cranes, pulleys and potter's wheels.

The fortress is becoming a world famous tourist attraction as it was named a "Star of Korean Tourism" in 2012 after it was also named one of 50 people to visit in South Korea by CNN

➤ International Business

Introduction

Globalization has created great challenges to companies and government organizations in the world. Managers have to deal with diversity, integrating technologies, international marketing and sales campaigns, among others, in a rapidly changing global environment and economy. The purpose of the MBA in International Business is to provide a deep understanding of global issues faced by different types of organizations, and enable participants to get a strong command of core business skills. For this purpose, International Business at AJOU GSIS provides prospective students with broad analytical perspective and theoretical and practical background in international business and the market through required and elective courses, being responsive to the international challenges faced by today's organizations. Students who wish to pursue careers internationally oriented in both private and public sectors that have to deal with international business and management are encouraged to study the International Business MBA at AJOU GSIS.

➤ International Trade

Introduction

To have an in-depth study of international trade stems from a humble premise that any analysis of economic, political and social implications of exchange between traders in more than two national markets differs from that between traders within a national market. International trade as a means for achieving better international cooperation and economic development is undisputable. Trade relations among countries have evolved through collective debate, negotiations, agreements and on many, varied and complex issues. To strengthen the world economy for a sustainable development of trade, investment, employment and income growth, the need to develop and nurture human resources for such an economic task is indispensable. It is in this respect that AJOU GSIS has taken the cue to train experts and professionals for governments, public institutions, private companies and firms, or individuals, with a view to enhancing their skills and understanding in the field of international trade, to handle the intricacies, issues, and challenges of the world trading system for a better future.

➤ NGO Studies

Introduction

The dramatic and rising importance of global civil society is undoubtedly underway throughout the world. Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) in the non-profit sector as a part of this exciting new development are working with, collaborating with and/or competing with governments as well as markets as interdependence and globalization begin to change our understanding of society and politics. In these transformative times NGOs are often regarded as being the driving force behind global changes in politics, economics, social/cultural as well as ethical global issues. It is vital therefore to understand the connections, dynamics and relationships between state and non-state actors working in the contemporary global political era. NGOs in their strategies and policy objectives, crucially, may even go beyond the domestic boundaries of sovereign states into the realm of global governance. NGOs therefore represent a practical strategic part of rethinking the site and nature of politics, power and authority in the 21st century. Reflecting upon the growing importance of NGOs and civil society, the NGO Studies major at AJOU GSIS seeks to develop an understanding of domestic as well as international networking processes by combining theory and practice in this field of study.

For this purpose, the NGO Studies major provides prospective students with broad categories of subjects ranging from managerial skills for NGOs, to NGO strategic cooperation with international organizations. Along with two required courses (NGO Introduction and Research Methods), the NGO major offers four broad categories of classes related to current NGO activities. They are: first, NGO and Civil Society, related subjects including Social Movements and Civic Education; second, NGO and Global Governance, related subjects including International Cooperation and International Organizations; third, NGO and Policy, related subjects including Public Policy and Policy Planning; and fourth, NGO and Management, related subjects including Human Resource Management, Social Marketing, and Financing.

Accompanying these specific academic and theoretical aspirations, AJOU GSIS also seeks to offer more practical opportunities related to NGO activities in South Korea, connecting our students with a variety of internships at local South Korean NGOs. Such practical experience will not only aid an increase in practical and policy orientated knowledge about this important and exciting area of global politics, but will also provide students with an opportunity to use their academic skills and provide students with concrete employment opportunities in the future. This is because state and non-state global institutions look for candidates with a multidisciplinary background and with associated knowledge and experience. The multidisciplinary perspective will also allow students to identify current and future global trends and patterns through which to establish strategic areas of concrete policy advice both in government and civil society. Therefore the Degree program conforms with the overall objectives of the GSIS mission which is to promote cutting edge understanding and commitment to perspectives and policies that contribute to the positive development of global governance. The Degree will therefore be of intellectual and practical interest and establish career orientated opportunities for anyone who aims to work for globally orientated international organizations related to NGO activities, those students interested in constructing and coordinating future developmental projects in a variety of developing countries, those who have the intention of working with a variety of civic organizations, and finally, as a normative goal, anyone with original and inspirational ideas for a better understanding of the world and its evolution in the 21st century. Such candidates are all invited to study for the degree of NGO studies at AJOU GSIS.

➤ International Development and Cooperation

Introduction

Since this program combines international cooperation with development, it gives students an overview and deeper understanding of essential ideas and practices of International Development and Cooperation (IDC). Therefore the program provides students a topical and thoughtful learning on the academic product of IDC. The program also provides students with political, economic, social and environmental perspectives of IDC through a multidisciplinary approach. Trying to incorporate objective viewpoints about governmental aid policies from developing countries in the South to developed countries in the North, it aims to explore a well-rounded view of developmental strategies as well as actors' behavior and precise issues of international cooperation.

The program is divided into three parts: (1) knowledge and information regarding the key motive power of IDC, Overseas Development Assistance (ODA) perspectives, (2) various IDC discourse such as development theories and their practical application cases, and (3) and exploration of contemporary politico-economic issues in the field of IDC. Finally the program is designed for students seeking to work at national/international public agencies, NGOs, non-profit organizations, and governments dealing with IDC issues.
